ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT

The Department of Science and Humanities of our college is triumphant in enabling students to adapt well to higher education environment after school education. This is thoughtfully achieved by our experienced and highly qualified members of faculty. The aim of the team is not only to make the students succeed, but also to make them handle emotions with timely moral support. The focus is completely on value-based and outcome-based teaching and learning.

The department consists of major disciplines including English, Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry. The department has a symbiotic relationship with engineering disciplines in mentoring first-year undergraduate students and firming up their fundamentals for the challenges ahead. The primary objectives of the department are to familiarize the first-year undergraduate students with basic concepts in mathematics, physics, chemistry and fundamental engineering subjects and to groom their communicative skills, professional skills and aptitude skills in problem-solving abilities.

Regular programmes on creativity-enhancing aspects such as those on Clay Modelling, Project Demonstration, Vedic Mathematics, Personality Development, Yoga, Career Development and Counselling are conducted both by in-house experts and by eminent resource persons from outside.

Message from the Editor's Desk

I take immense pleasure to announce that the 'FIZZ FROSH', the newsletter of Science and Humanities is ready with their next compilation issue 2, volume 4. It provides bountiful space to include all our departmental activities and staff and students achievements - an absolute platform to cherish and appreciate.

A team of editorial members, whom I count on in many ways, used the full extent of their skills in nesting all accomplishments of S&H in the right order. I feel privileged to thank our Principal Dr. T. Kannan, without whose enthusiasm this magazine might not have been completed. Every achievement recorded in this newsletter makes the pages resplendent and will set the stage for others to contribute to this newsletter in the days ahead. I hope this newsletter provides a good mix of multifarious accomplishments to recognize our efforts and thereby welcome new ideas.
